New Drum Major

When the Henry Clay High School Band at Lexington organized for the present school year they selected Don Sebastian as their drum major. Don is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sebastian and began his school career in West Liberty. The Sebastians had lived in Ashland several years and Don was drum major in the school band there last year, and the moving to Lexington and changing schools will not interfere with his musical ambitions.

Sends Good News

Ernie Bolin, formerly of Florence, Ky., and now on Rural Route number four of Lebanon, Ohio, was here visiting relatives and friends last week. Mr. Bolin has a brother and a sister in Washington and to make up for the letters he does not write to them as often as he ought to be sending each of them a regular subscription to the Licking Valley Courier. May the Courier always bring a measure of satisfaction to these former Morgan citizens.

GOD ON THE SPOT

Prime Minister Chamberlain: "Now may God bless you all . . . it is evil things that we shall be fighting against, force, had faith, injustice, oppression and persecution. Against them I am certain the right will prevail."

Chancellor Hitler: "We were forced to take up arms in self-defense. I know the God will favor us with victory as right and justice are on our side."—The Russell Times.

Borrowed Money Balance

According to the Financial Statement which was printed last week for Montgomery county the Fiscal Court of that county borrowed during the year $28,200 and added that to its regular ordinary receipts. Their statement then shows a balance in their treasury of $15,657.35. From this it will be seen that Montgomery county is paying a part of its current expenses from borrowed money.

The club won second place, lacking only one point out of a possible 1500 points of making first place.

SHOWER FOR NEWLY WEDS

The community gave Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Lacy a miscellaneous shower Tuesday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Roscoe Brong. After all the beautiful gifts had been opened and admired by Mrs. Lacy, she expressed her appreciation in such a sweet way. Some one brought Bernard, in and he was so pleased but very bashful before so many ladies. Several kinds of delicious home made candy was served.

The following were present or sent gifts:

SIGHT SEEING TRIP

The Pomp Sunday school left here at 9 o'clock Sunday morning for a sight-seeing and picnic trip to Sky Bridge. Baskets and boxes were filled with good things to eat and taken along. After exploring the many things of interest, including the bridge which is formed entirely of rock, lunch was eaten in the park.

After lunch the choir sang. Then "Hold My Hand" was sung by Frieda and Lewis Cox. After this Rev. M. B. Whitt conducted the Sunday school. After Sunday school the party went to the look-out tower at Pine Ridge. The tower is one hundred and eight feet high. They visited with Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Fannin, who live there and care for the place. Pictures were taken of the tower and surroundings. Then the happy party boarded the school bus and two cars that took them and turned homeward, arriving home just as the sun went down, with many pleasant memories to cherish.

The following persons went on the trip: Mrs. Melva Whitt and children, Darrel, J. D. Dorisale, Edna, Maude Alice, Matt and Tommy Riggsby, Charles and Cathlene Caskey, Nell and Mildred Welch, Walton Cox, Ivory Adkins, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Cox and children, Bobby, Glenna and Owen Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cox, Lewis and Frieda Cox, George Adams and children, William, Ethel, Lorine, Ida Mae and Jessie, Billy Riggsby, Guy, Homer and Chester Whitt, Mr. and Mrs. Warner Whitt, Helen and Barbara Whitt, Ford Sheets and Elmar Trusty, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mayabb and Carrie Riggsby, Rev. and Mrs. M. B. Whitt, Melva King, Byron Lewis of Wrigley, Linn Boyd Lewis, Orlan Adams, Velva Welch, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Caskey and Thurman Caskey.

Finding Our Way Out—We'll have to ask questions and do a lot of poking around before we can find our way out of our present mess. An old lady on the street car was afraid she'd pass the place where she wanted to get off. She asked the conductor with her umbrella, "Is that the First National Bank?" "No mum," replied the conductor, "them's my ribs."

A Flock of Evermans

The Everman family held a reunion at Grayson last week with an attendance of three hundred and ninety-six. With the exception of about twenty invited guests all of this vast crowd was in some way related to or a part of the Everman family tree.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Reason cannot be slandered by epithets.

Every individual is apt to judge others by his, or her, inner morality. Cheer up! In a few weeks the world series will run war off the front page.

There are a lot of good people in West Liberty; you ought to know them better.

Advertising is one of the two commodities that newspapers sell; don't ask for it free.

Government by newspapers, we are sure, would be as bad as government by politicians.

Government spending is usually bad unless it happens to be spent in your own community.

The United States can remain at peace, we believe, so long as Great Britain and France remain independent.

Germany, it seems, from what we read, finds the world against her again after less than 25 years of peace.

The football season will soon exhibit some of the reasons for the popularity of higher education in the United States.

Governments are organized, fundamentally, to serve the people; when they fail, they will be supplanted by new forms of government that will serve the people.

About the most appalling situation that we know is a great big man in a rather little job where nobody much notices him.

Whenever you see something or other called the "world's greatest" whatever it is, you can put it down to seller's enthusiasm.

What some people consider art other people dislike; the world is not peopled by automaton and disagreement in taste is to be expected.

European military staffs are not conducting their campaigns in accordance with the strategy that is being freely dispensed in the newspapers.

When the Courier advises the people here to pull together we mean everybody, not just those who buy but those who sell, who hire and manage the finance of the community.

Speeding in an automobile may get you there quicker most of the time but sometimes the calculation won't work and you will take your place as Casualty No. 13.

WHAT IS OUR FOREIGN POLICY?

The foreign policy of the United States is, at best, a vague, undefined mixture, composed of a desire for peace and the hope that nobody will do us wrong.

The government can advance slowly in outlining new policies but until the people of the United States develop a clearer preference, there is little that any official can do.

It is very hard to ascertain exactly what the people of this nation stand for in foreign affairs. The magazine Fortune recently sampled public opinion, using the method that enabled it to successfully forecast the last presidential election.

According to the survey, completed before the outbreak of war in Europe, an overwhelming majority of Americans wanted the United States to continue its effort to preserve peace without necessarily stating what the nation would do if war began.

The people advocated a boycott of the dictator powers the minute they attack democracies but they did not wish to intervene with arms even to save England or France. Strangely enough, the big majority would fight Japan if necessary to protect the Philippines and use force to protect American property from confiscation by Latin-American governments.

If anybody can make heads or tails out of this mixture of so-called public opinion and then steer a foreign policy that will fit it like a glove, the United States will certainly have found the world's pre-eminent statesman.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Hon. Hubert Meredith, Attorney General of Kentucky will address the voters here Monday, Sept. 5, at one o'clock at the Court house. Mr. Meredith will speak in the interest of the Democratic ticket. He is an able and fluent speaker and his will be one of the best speeches of the campaign. We have told you.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE

This year as in former years the month of October will be one of intense campaigning. No doubt the good and intelligent people of Morgan county will make a wise selection for the important office of Representative.

I am twenty-seven years old and have taught school in Morgan county nine years. I was born and raised on Elk Fork.

If I am elected Representative you are assured I will serve all the people to the best of my ability, and will not be swayed or lead by any politician. Will you please elect me as your Representative this fall and give me a chance. I will serve you well.

O. E. S.

The Eastern Star, Paulina Chapter No. 360 had an unusually good meeting at the Hall Monday evening.

The retiring officers gave an impressive little program, which was an expression of appreciation to the retiring Worthy Matron, Mrs. Lillian Blair, and the retiring Worthy Patron, Yandal Wraether. It was a pleasing surprise to them.

There was a beautiful installation service with Oscar Pelfrey as installing officer and Mrs. Stella Fannin as installing Marshall.

The retiring Worthy Matron and other officers gave a very pretty welcome to the newly installed Worthy Matron, Mrs. Curtis Franklin, which was also a surprise.

There were several beautifully worded speeches, such as the presentation of a beautiful gavel by the retiring Worthy Matron and Worthy Patron; the presentation to each of these officers a Past Matron and Past Patron Pin, respectively, by Mrs. Lula Belle Elam and Rev. Harlan Murphy; a gift to each of these two retiring officers by Grand Deputy, Mrs. Ida Henry; the presentation of a Life Certificate to the Grand Deputy by the retiring Worthy Matron; a recital giving information on the work of the chapter by the Grand Deputy.

One of the outstanding features of the evening was, that not one officer elected or appointed was absent, which added much to the Installation Service.

All retired to the Emrick Restaurant for a Dixie Cup.

The list of new officers follow: Worthy Matron, Mrs. Curtis Franklin; Associate Worthy Matron, Mrs. Kathleen Franklin; Worthy Patron, Rev. Murphy; Associate Worthy Patron, Oscar Pelfrey; Conductress, Mrs. Barletta Wraether; Associate Conductress, Mrs. Elizabeth Elam; Secretary, Mrs. Virginia Brong; Treasurer, W. G. FARMERS' COLUMN

THE FARM AND HOME

Best methods for roasting beef call for no water. Also, do not cover pan or baste. Roast in a slow oven—300 to 350 degrees. For a rare roast, leave in oven 18 to 20 minutes per pound of meat; medium roast, 22 to 25 minutes per pound, and well-done, 27 to 35 minutes.

Keeping a laying mash, and oats and corn before hens, in separate self-feeders, is recommended by the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Directions for making three kinds of dry mash mixtures are given in the "Poultry Calendar," published by the College.

One way to avoid gas dangers in silos during the filling period is to run the blowers several minutes before anyone enters the silo. If the blower does not reach far enough to stir the air thoroughly, a test should be made with a lantern.

When burley tobacco has cured and changed from yellow to straw or buff color, it should be dry enough to rattle, it is pointed out in "Ventilation of Tobacco Barns," a circular published by the Kentucky College of Agriculture. After thorough curing, the ventilators should be closed to preserve color and quality.

To avoid anemia from dietary lacks, be sure to keep in the diet plenty of red meat such as beef and liver, as well as fruits and vegetables. Now that winter is approaching more attention must be paid to this than during summer. Two green vegetables at least once a day and one egg or more should be used per person.

No woman is well-groomed whose clothes need cleaning and pressing. By having clothes cleaned or doing it at home, often the number of fall garments to be bought can be cut down. An inventory should be made before any fall clothes are purchased.

LIME & PHOSPHATE EFFECTIVE
Wolfe county farmers are reporting to County Agent Chas. E. Gabbard that the use of limestone and superphosphate improved pasture and hay crops 50 to 250 percent this year. W. M. Arnett, Lee City, who has farmed on a large scale for 35 years, told Mr. Gabbard this:

"I half-way believed what I heard about lime and phosphate, until I found out for myself this year, when I tried both materials on lespedeza. Lespedeza on an untreated strip grew about 6 inches high. It grew about twice as big where lime was used. Where phosphate alone was used, the lespedeza was about two and a half times larger than on the untreated strip, and where both limestone and superphosphate were applied, the lespedeza was three times as heavy."

NEW PLANT BED SITES

In an effort to prevent blue mold in tobacco plant beds, Kentucky and Tennessee are joining in a campaign to urge growers to use new plant bed sites. Experience in both states, as well as in other states, for several years, indicates that blue mold appears first in plant beds used the previous year, and spreads from them to other beds, says a statement by Dr. W. D. Valleau, plant pathologist at the Kentucky Experiment Station and College of Agriculture.

Kentucky and Tennessee are out of line of prevailing winds from the Carolinas, which is said to mean that there is little danger of getting blue mold from the southeast.

Growers in both Kentucky and Tennessee are being urged to select new plant bed sites this fall and winter for use next spring. If this is done, Dr. Valleau says there should be little danger from blue mold before the setting season is well advanced.

Life Job of Heart

A human heart pumps 90,000,000 gallons of blood in a usual lifetime.

QUICKSAND FAIR

A large part of Eastern Kentucky is served by the annual festival and fair held each fall at the Robinson Agricultural Experiment Substation at Quicksand, Breathitt county. Dates of this year's fair are Sept. 28-29.

In addition to displays of farm crops, livestock, home and school exhibits, one entire division is for 4-H club members, of whom there are many thousands in the eastern counties of the state. The club members, leaders, teachers and parents hold a big parade, after which outstanding clubs, members and leaders are given public recognition.

Folk dancing, ballad singing, games and contests are other features of this annual get-together for Eastern Kentucky.

THE FOLLY OF TREATIES

The world today is faced with another Armageddon largely because certain nations violated or renounced solemn treaties while other nations, signatories to those treaties, failed to demand compliance therewith.

Danzig and the Polish Corridor are merely the tragic sequences to the violation of the Kellogg-Briand Pact and Nine Power Treaty when Japanese troops, on the night of September 18, 1931, seized Mukden. To its credit the League of Nations undertook to stop Japan but failed. And to its credit the United States, which was signatory to both the Kellogg-Briand Pact and the Nine Power Treaty, sought with the aid of England to halt Japan but, unable to get favorable action through diplomatic channels, the matter was not pressed.

Today Manchuria and other portions of China are in the possession of Japan. The next act of aggression was that of Italy against Ethiopia. Both nations were signatories to the Kellogg-Briand Pact and also adherents of the League of Nations. Again the League of Nations failed, and the fifty-two nations who are parties to the Kellogg-Briand Pact failed to act concertedly against Italy. The United States performed in part her agreement.

Quick to act on the supineness of the great powers in not enforcing the League of Nations Pact, and the Kellogg Pact, the Nazi Government began to remilitarize the Rhineland. Now for the first time military force was proposed against these acts of aggression. Frenchmen sensing the motives of the aggressive German mind criticized England's leniency toward the German Reich for allowing it to remilitarize the Rhineland and said that a "preventive war" against Germany would likely save millions of lives and hundreds of millions worth of property.

What with German propaganda that she was not the aggressor in the World War, and the general desire for world peace, Germany's insistence for full sovereignty was passively agreed to by most of the nations, at least there was no powerful sovereignty. The Nazis made the most of the world sentiment that civilized justice be done her. The result has been the remilitarizing of the whole of Germany; the formation of the Berlin-Rome axis; the destruction of the Spanish Republic; Austria and Czechoslovakia; the establishment of a friendly government in Spain to the detriment of France and England; the taking of Memel and the bringing of Hungary, if not Russia, into the line of the Reich under Hitler, and now the attack on Poland.

In the interim Italy, after the conquest of Ethiopia, seized Albania, and Japan has continued her onslaught on China. Today, within eight years, the present old-world civilization is on the verge of being destroyed because of the greed, selfishness and procrastinating policy of great powers in not promptly forcing compliance with the treaties and pacts to which they were parties.—Scottish Rites News Bureau.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Projects Returned

More than 5,000 applications for PWA projects, two-thirds of them examined and many approved, have been returned to the local units by John M. Carmody, Federal Works Administrator, who explains his action by stating that the PWA is without funds to extend its program. The applicants are advised to make other arrangements to proceed with the projects. Mr. Carmody expressed the opinion that many of the projects could be financed through private initiative and saw a "splendid opportunity for private enterprise and industry to show what it can do." Total expenditures under the projects returned would have exceeded $700,000,000.

Army Ban

The regular Army rule barring married men from enlistment has been extended to exclude all men with dependents.

A naturalist has discovered that ants move faster in summer than in winter . . . but of course . . . in the summer they're headed for a picnic.—The Russell Times.

The average American has 484 "wants" of which ninety-four are necessities, against fifty-two "wants" and sixteen necessities 100 years ago, says President Compton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.—Big Sandy News.

This note came into the Eagle office: Born to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Blair a nice 8½-pound baby boy, on Saturday, September 2, named Samuel Darrell Blair, Jr. Sam Blair, the barber, says he is not guilty, so it must be somebody else.—Whitesburg Mountain Eagle.

Elliott county is going to have some hefty throwing contests on the first day of their annual agricultural fair. According to the program printed in their fair catalogue, on Thursday, October 5, the parade will be followed by a horse pitching contest.—Morehead Independent.

C. A. Casteel, of East Bernstadt, had on display at the Second National Bank what many who have seen it believe to be the champion ear of corn grown in Laurel county this year. It was so heavy it broke the stalk, and including the shuck weighs two and a quarter pounds.—The Sentinel-Echo (London).

Several hundred citizens have filed with County Judge Earl W. Senff a petition asking that there be submitted to the voters of the county the question whether an all-time health department shall be established or not, which department would include a doctor, nurse, sanitary inspector and clerk.—Mt. Sterling Advocate.

The poor editor was doing his best. It wasn't his fault that he came to such an untimely end. He didn't want to die. But she shot him, hacked him to pieces with a hatchet and then poured acid on him, spat in his face and kicked him. Poor fellow. He had tried to be nice to her too. He had written up her bridge game—really thought he had done himself proud. He had written "Mrs. Jilks proved herself to be the prize winner when she smacked her big trump on the table and broke up the game." How was the poor editor to know that his typesetter had left the "t" off of trump?—Eddyville Herald.

Two Ohio World War veterans, fighting in a small rowboat in the middle of the Ohio river over the merits of German and Allied claims in the new European war, fell overboard and drowned Sunday. Police Chief James Kinney identified the pair as Paris Shepherd, 44, and Clifford Glaze, 45, both of Higginsport, Ohio. Kinney quoted Henry Cochran, also of Higginsport, the third man in the boat, as saying the pair continued fighting in the river until both went down. Their bodies were recovered a few hours later and a coroner's jury gave a verdict of death by drowning. Chief Kinney said two quart bottles of whiskey were found in the boat, one of them nearly empty. A broken oar was found floating nearby.—Exchange.

Movie Trust

The Department of Justice continues its anti-trust drive against the moving picture industry by beginning criminal contempt proceedings against thirteen motion picture companies on the West Coast, who are charged with violating a consent decree entered into nine years ago. The decree ordered the discontinuance of preferences extended to the Fox organization over independents and a recent investigation disclosed that the same conditions, previously enjoyed, now continue. In addition, the Government has an anti-trust suit against all major companies, separate actions against regional picture "chains" and inquiries into income tax reports of film executives and also an inquiry into alleged labor racketeering in Hollywood.

Alaskan Bases

The Naval Bureau of Yards and Docks has signed contracts for the construction of two air bases in the northern Pacific area, at Kodiak Island and Sitka. During the last session, Congress voted $63,000,000 for the construction an equipment of air and submarine bases in the Pacific and the Atlantic. Of the seven bases provided for in the Pacific, Kodiak was given the largest sum, $9,800,000. The Sitka estimate is $2,939,000.

SCHOOL DAYS

School bells have already started ringing, or will be in a very few days. The first days of school find children somewhat excited and perhaps not as cautious as usual. That is why the driver should be doubly alert at the present time. Especially should he drive carefully through school areas. Statistics show that in one year, some 2,400 children between the ages of 5 to 14 were killed by automobiles, and some 86,000 were injured. Many of those injured were crippled for life.

After school hours, where proper playgrounds have not been provided, children are very likely to be found playing in the streets or on the highways. This, also is true in some localities where children walk to school. They often "hitch on" to trucks or try to "beat the car" across the street. In the excitement of play they fail to see cars, or, in trying to get out of the way they stumble and fall. Children are naturally impulsive. A normal child gets an idea and acts upon it immediately. It is perfectly natural for playing children to act suddenly and without caution. Since this is the nature of children, the sportsmanlike driver assumes responsibility for their safety. He drives as though assuming that every child playing on or near the street is about to dart in front of the car. He never depends on the child to be cautious.

Children can be trained to be good pedestrians. Even with the traffic hazards of young children as great as they are, the average level of skill and caution of grade school children has been greatly raised in recent years by a well-planned public school program of safety education. By means of stories, plays, posters and safety programs children are being successfully taught what to do in traffic. As a result, their accident rate has been greatly reduced.

Let's make the rate lower this year than ever before.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

As the founder and president of a college, I am naturally interested in the idea of "standardization" which we hear about so much from some of our educational experts. However, the greatest need of colleges and universities is not educational standardization. It is moral, ethical and Christian standardization that we need in our institutions of learning. Unless we have the proper spiritual and moral standards, no other kind of standards worthwhile can be sustained. Young people without moral character will cheat on examination, and the higher the standards of an institution the greater the temptations to cheat, unless the student has proper moral standards. Unless the instructors have the right moral character, they will be tempted to pass students whether they deserve to pass or not and they might fail students who should pass. The problem of educational institutions is the same problem we have in government. It is a moral problem. We have lowered our moral standards. We have a bankruptcy of character in the world. What we need are the old-time, rugged convictions of our forefathers who believed in an authoritative Bible and God of justice. We need again to bring young people the old message that our forefathers preached; that is, that sin destroys; that men cannot do wrong and get away with it; that there is a coming judgment; that right is right and wrong is wrong. The new religious philosophy which has been given to young people for the last few years is responsible for the wave of sensuality and moral looseness which has produced our juvenile criminals and has pulled down our old-time, moral standards.

The devil told Eve to live her own life, that she did not need any God or "big boss" telling her what to do; that the fruit that she had been forbidden to eat looked good tasted good and would make her wise. So, she and Adam trampled under foot the command of God and took over their own affairs. What a mess they made! They destroyed their garden; they wrecked their paradise; they damned their children, and cursed the world through all generations. The satanic philosophy is being taught today in many of our educational institutions. "Live your own life; you have a right to do as you please," young people are told. If you want that man's property, take it. If you are married and want another man's wife and she wants you, go on and live together. We people that know the Bible and know what it teaches about human nature realize full well that human nature does not need any encouragement to do wrong. Human nature's tendency is downward and not upward. It has an affinity for evil. Man believed the devil's lie in the beginning. He is still inclined to get his message from the devil. Even after Paul was saved he said something about when he would do good, evil is present. It is not necessary to tell unregenerated men to do as they please. Men without God always live their own lives and go as far as they can, except as they are restrained by law, social custom or their own self preservation. Man was born in sin. He is a sinner and his only hope is to be born again if he is to live a life of victory over his own sinful impulses.

WCKY DEDICATES NEW TRANSMITTER; CBS SALUTES 50,000-WATT AFFILIATE

When WCKY affiliates with the Columbia network Sunday, the L. B. Wilson station will formally dedicate its 50,000 watt transmitter and celebrate the fact that it is now as powerful as any station in the entire United States.

Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati has set aside the week of Sept. 24th by official proclamation as "WCKY 50,000 Watt Week". Festivities start Sunday with a coast-to-coast salute between 6 and 6:30 p. m. (E.S.T.) on the Columbia network with more than a hundred stations carrying the program honoring WCKY.

WCKY returns the salute Monday afternoon. A gala broadcast will originate on Cincinnati's historic Fountain Square and will be attended by many celebrities. L. B. Wilson cordially invites radio listeners in this vicinity to attend the dedication ceremonies on the Square, and to visit the 50,000-watt transmitter, shown above together with the gigantic 350 foot transmitting tower. The other pictures show Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, the former Jean Oliver of stage fame, who dedicated the WCKY transmitter with a bottle of Ohio River water on July 27th at quiet ceremonies attended only by staff members. Public dedication was postponed to the week of Sept. 24th coincident with the station's new network affiliation.

MORCAN COUNTY SCHOOL PAGE

(Under Auspices of Ova O. Haney, County Supt.)

EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS

Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is with a great deal of pleasure that we assemble at this splendid school building to dedicate the beautiful grounds upon which it stands and which are adjacent to it and which will be used with it. A lot of difference between this and the old one room school in which most of us were educated. However, it is the natural law of life that we advance and that we leave to our children and posterity a better chance than we had. It is our ambition that our sons and their sons shall reach higher places of usefulness in the world than we have reached. In order for them to do this, we lay deeper foundations and chart the way to make it easier for them to go further than we. When one is born into the world, he must start all over the work of another and new generation, but if he has a richer past upon which to draw and a better opportunity and foundation on which to build, he has a chance and an opportunity to go still higher than his ancestors. This splendid school and these grounds are here today as a result of the untiring energy of a few men in your town and county. To Ova Haney and most of his board members and to W. M. Gardner and some others here who have worked so hard and long about these things, great credit is due. They have brought to you what you have today in this wonderful plant and what you have at Cannel City, Wrigley and Crockett.

We must not be unmindful of the fact that all of these government aided educational institutions in the county and in all other counties in the nation which have been built recently have been built by borrowed money and that we still have to pay for them, but while this was being done, some counties let their opportunity go by and failed to get what was coming to them, and let the buildings go to other places; but our wide awake county superintendent and educational board saw to it that they were getting their part of the buildings, and that we were not going to help pay the bonded indebtedness of the nation without getting something for it. A less active board would have let the opportunity go by and we would have had no school buildings or grounds and would still owe as much and would have to pay as much as we do with them. We help pay all of the debts of the United States for all buildings erected by the government and everybody in the United States helps pay for them, including that incurred for these buildings. We pay for what the government does in taxes. Ova Haney saw to it that we got the buildings for which we will help to pay.

Education may be directed in the right direction and it can be directed in the wrong one. An educated man can do much good or he can do much evil. He is more powerful to do evil when he so desires when educated. Thus it is important that all education be directed along the proper course. Education is a broad term. It is a word of great breadth. It comprehends every thing we learn or know. Some people have but little education and never can have much, no matter what the opportunities afforded them. Some men will learn and acquire a good education with but little opportunity. Education has made rapid progress in this country. There are today in the United States over 700 colleges. In them are 1,400,000 students. In the grade and high schools there are more than 25,000,000 pupils from 5 to 17 years of age, with over 900,000 teachers. In colleges and other schools there is a total of more than 1,000,000 teachers, and more than 26,500,000 pupils. For the maintenance of the public schools, more than two billion dollars annually are expended. We have in this country 16 colleges with an annual average attendance of more than 10,000 students each. We have one University with 37,650 students, and we have three with over 25,000 and six with over 15,000 each. 150 years ago, we had but few more people in the United States than we have students in school in the state of New York alone. At first, most of the schools and colleges were started and maintained by the church. Then the public recognized the fact that in a democracy where the people rule they must be educated. So the common school system—the public school system started and began to grow until it has reached the figures I have given you. Thus we have advanced from the one teacher, one room backless bench school to the modern brick, stone and frame school building with all necessary teachers, and with modern scientific equipment. In addition to all this, millions are being spent in research work all over the country.

But the HIGHWAY of education has been a long time in construction in order to reach to the point at which it has arrived. It began when man became a living soul and when he began to look out upon an unconquered and an unknown world for his own welfare and that of posterity. It has pursued devious courses and in different countries and in different ages has shown different stages of development.

The heavy traffic of ignorance, prejudice and superstition which went over it often crumbled it, and it almost lost its name and number; but gradually and by spurts, men looked up to God, and, in search for the way out, were able to pull themselves together and get upon higher and better ground. It has ever been a struggle. No progress has ever been made in anything worth while without struggle and sacrifice. Self denial and self sacrifice have been the watch words of progress. Jesus said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow me." These words, "Self denial, cross-bearing and submission to intellectual leadership, have been the marching orders of advance.

It is a long way from the log hut to the modernly equipped home, with its comforts and conveniences; it is a long way from the old stone or cast iron kettle and oven to the modern electric or gas cooker; it is a long way from the old wooden wash board to the modern electric washing machine; it is a long way from the ox cart, plow, wagon and scythe to the modern plow, tractor and reaper; it is a long way from transportation by donkey, saddle horse, or horse and buggy to the modern automobile or airplane; it is a long way from the old dirt road which was almost impassible in winter and over which you could only make from 2 to 5 miles an hour, to the modern hard surfaced road, good all the year, and over which you can drive from 40 to 60 miles an hour with safety; it is a long way from the day when it took us a week to get news of what was happening in New York through the slow moving newspapers which then traveled by mail slowly, to this day when you can sit down by your radio and hear what is then happening in London or what has happened in France only a few minutes before; it is a long way from the time when men died from simple ailments, the cause and character of which were not then known, to modern medicine and surgery when men are restored to health in a few days by simple treatment and surgical operations; it is a long way from the day when the average life of man was only 35 years to the present day when it is 55 years; yet in one generation we have seen all these things happen. But they did not just happen. They were brought about by discipline, struggle and self-sacrifice. Had it not been for long years of research and hard work by hundreds and thousands of men, these things would still be living the life of the old days. These improvements are the result of the educated brain, disciplined hand and sympathetic heart. The man or woman who helped to bring these things about, although possessed of but little of this world's goods, is entitled to more credit, glory and honor than a man who has by slick trading or shrewd business manipulations made a million.

The advances to which I have referred have in the main been intellectual. They have been scientific. They have been the product of the human intellect. God placed us here to live upon and subdue the earth and get everything possible out of it for the good of the race. All nature is a book from which man may read and which he may study. It holds secrets we know not of and of which we have not yet dreamed. They have been there for thousands of years. It is man's business to hunt for and find them and utilize them for the good of humanity.

For thousands of years, the rushing waters of our rivers went by unnoticed as only so much water and without our knowing they could be utilized to produce electric power, heat and light. Now the problem is and will be where to find a market for all of the hydraulic electric power which they can produce.

For centuries, electric power by the billions of kilowatt hours lay stored up within reach of every man on earth, but we didn't know it, but the time is not far distant when it will be utilized for light, power and refrigeration in all the homes in this country.

For centuries, vast stores of oil and gas lay under the surface of the earth and within the reach of man, and he didn't know it, but when he awoke to its usefulness, they revolutionized transportation and revitalized the industries of the country.

For centuries, man regarded coal as of no value except for fuel or heating purposes, but today the by-products from it are being used for a hundred useful purposes, and as the days go by, new discoveries are made and new and heretofore unknown products are made available from it for the happiness and welfare of man.

A few years ago, I stood at the railroad station at Palatka, Florida, for a couple of hours, while waiting for a train and while there I saw a man drive by with one ox yoked and hitched to an old ox cart; I saw several men ride by on horseback; I saw men go by in wagons and in buggies; I saw automobiles and trucks come and go; I saw and heard a steam boat whistle and go down St. Johns river; I saw trains go by, and while there, two or three airplanes flew over the little town. There within 2 hours I saw and heard the instrumentalities of the evolution of transportation during a period covering some fifty years with travel speed up from 2 miles to 150 miles an hour.

This is and has been a marvelous age in which to live. It has been a scientifically, progressive age. It has been an age in which science has strutted itself.

Science has not confined its achievements to the things about which I have spoken, but it has been extended to agriculture, mining and every phase of business and commercial life. If one were to awake from a sleep of a hundred years, he would not recognize the world in which we are living. He would conclude that he was in another or new world. But there are other achievements ahead of us which will and naturally must come. While enlightened minds and trained hands have brought us thousands of the necessities of life, as well as luxuries, and have taken us from individual to mass production, it has left us with ten million people unemployed and a depression that holds on. We sometime wonder whether we are over-producing and whether we can ever adjust production and consumption, but the great problem is proper distribution of what we produce. We could use much more than we can produce for a decade if we could work out a systematic and correct method of getting from everybody what they ought to produce and to have, and this is a problem which must be worked out to a reasonable extent by business, labor, consumer and government coordination; and it takes educated and trained men to do these things. They can not be done by mere fiat of government, and they can not and will not be worked out merely by selfish, organized employers of labor, or by a mob of selfish, organized labor itself. The general public is a third party and very much interested in the proper settlement of all economic questions, and those who represent the general public, and the general public itself, must be educated and know what ought to be done and how to do it, and then have the spirit and courage to do it. These questions and problems are never settled until they are settled right. Economic laws are just as unerring as the laws of nature, and when they are disregarded, the country suffers.

Every farmer, every miner, every merchant, every business or professional man, every banker, every employer, every laborer, and every consumer must be taken into consideration and must help to settle all of these questions, and their settlement requires trained and educated leaders and a responsive general public.

For a century, we have depleted the soil and consumed our minerals until we are confronted with the problem of making the farms produce the crops and timber necessary for our maintenance. In recent years, much has been done to stop the waste of natural resources, and to restore fertility to the soil and to re-forest the country, but much remains to be done. When we stop and think about how carefully the peoples of Europe have been to preserve these things in order that they may live, we approach the problem of what will happen to this country if we do not do our part in conservation. In this great country in which we live, we could produce enough to feed 100,000 people if we knew our oats and would do our best. Think of how the Swiss and other peoples of Europe make the hilly, lean earth of those countries feed them, and then we should be inspired to make our own county and country more productive. If they had a country like this on which to work, they would indeed feel rich and happy. We must go on and use better methods in conserving our farms and farm resources; for we must depend mostly upon our farms for our support. We should educate our boys and girls to the fullest extent of which we are able, and then offer them something here at home so that they will not have to leave the county to seek profitable and satisfactory employment. The resources are here if we can capitalize upon them. Nature will respond bountifully if we will use our heads and hands in honest endeavor. Education plus energy and application will furnish the answer to our economic questions and problems.

All over our country, vocational schools and colleges have been established that young men and women may prepare themselves for certain vocations of life, and this is well. The idea that college only exists for the purpose of educating men and women for the learned professions no longer prevails. Training schools for men who engage in almost every business under the sun exist and operate for farmers, barbers, miners, merchants, bankers, mechanics, plumbers, carpenters, dentists, doctors, lawyers, ministers and everything else. When Jesus was 12 years old, on His visit to Jerusalem, His parents lost Him, and when they found Him, He was in the temple asking and answering question of concern to the Wise Men, and when asked by His parents why He had caused this trouble and what He was doing, His answer was, "Know ye not that I must be about my father's business?" That is a question that addresses itself to every person in the world. Every man or woman in the world while engaged in some honest, worthwhile business in the right spirit, is engaged in his Father's business. Every kind of business from street cleaner and garbage loader to president of the United States is the Father's business; and any kind of business which contributes to the welfare of the people of the country is the Father's business, and it is honorable to engage in it. Men must be taught to know that it is honorable to engage in any business which adds to the welfare of the community; and every man should be taught to do his job well whatever it is. Make it a profession and business which commands your very best. If you mine coal, mine it right. If you farm, farm scientifically. If you build houses, build them well. If you preach, tell the truth and bring the people a worthwhile message. If you practice medicine, know the human body and how to treat it. All of these things are within the field of education.

But while all this is true, our educational system which has strengthened the body and sharpened the intellect, has not been properly balanced. We have over emphasized the physical and intellectual and underestimated and failed to emphasize the moral and spiritual nature of man. God made these beautiful hills and valleys to grow timber, flowers and useful crops, and not for hiding and abiding places for moonshine stills and dens of prostitution and iniquity. God filled the earth with iron, steel and other minerals for the construction of homes and other instrumentalities for personal and community welfare, and not for the construction of cannon and other death dealing weapons of offensive war or for human destruction. He gave us natural resources necessary for highway construction in order that we might build and use them for useful, moral and needful purposes, but not for immoral or iniquitous purposes. Millions of men and women spend much of their time and money in attending and promoting great college and other athletic games and races, who laugh and make fun of God in His face and in the face of His creatures. They are willing to sharpen the intellect and strengthen the body, but refuse to yield to the moral code of the universe. Crime draws many of its recruits from this unbalanced, uneducated youth of the land. The very things which God gave to men to use righteously and make them happy, they use immorally and unrighteously to make men suffer and to make countless millions mourn here and in eternity.

There has been a tremendous slump in the moral and spiritual life of our country since the World War. Men have shifted from their dependence upon God and their own initiative to that of dependence upon foreign "isms." What is happening politicians and charity. When men in Europe should be a lesson to us lose their sense of personal independence and initiative, their sense of honor, integrity, honesty and self reliance, they weaken themselves and they and the community and state suffer. Enough of it will produce national death. You can't successfully educate men physically and intellectually and leave them barbarians morally and spiritually. When men become dishonest with their fellow men or the government, they not only weaken the government, but their own moral fiber. What we need most in this country and in the whole world is a great moral and spiritual awakening and revival that will equal or surpass our physical and intellectual achievements; and with such a thing realized, the economic problems of this country and the world will take care of themselves and will soon be solved.

The break down in Europe which has started another world war and which will stop the progress of world civilization and annihilate a large part of its population is not because of lack of intellectual or physical education as much as lack of moral and spiritual virtues. Personal and national selfishness, ambition and greed have set aside the principles of the sermon on the mount and have thrown the word of God into the seas of forgetfulness. A nation of intellectual and scientific people have cut themselves loose from Jehovah and substituted Adolph Hitler in His place, and while they recognize the fact that there may be a God, they put Hitler and the State above God. The God of fatherly love and the Christ of brotherly affection are set aside for the time, and the ambition of Hitler and the spirit of conquest are substituted in their place; and helpless women and children are bombed and murdered, and small nations are powerless to live their own lives and maintain their own integrity so long as they have something Hitler or Germany wants.

I am not unmindful of the fact that England and France have been selfish in a way, and that they too want to retain the territory won by them in the other World War, but they did not bring on that war; and in human blood and sacrifice, they paid an enormous price for what they got. I am glad that this country did not covet territory or demand war indemnities. We went into the war unselfishly and we unselfishly came out of it. If other nations had done the same thing, this present war in Europe might not be on. However, it is on. The democracies of Europe know they must stop Hitler or all Europe and perhaps Asia in time will lie at his feet and take orders from Germany. The German people have capitulated to one man—a tyrant ever lusty for power and more power and more territory over which to exercise this power. He has no integrity. He breaks treaties and covenants as fast as he makes them and sees an opportunity to make a better trade. He ditches a solemn treaty when he sees an opportunity to derive some present advantage by doing so. In one night, he changes from a bitter enemy of Communism to an enthusiastic supporter of it. The whole world looks on with awe and horror. Small nations tremble at his feet and are crushed and absorbed by Germany.

Still in this country, we tolerate the spread of Nazism which masquerades under the name of German Bunds and Communism in Communist societies and this hellish stuff which is opposed to our republican or democratic form of government has found and is finding support in some of the schools and colleges of this country, and especially in the foreign element sections of our large cities.

Every teacher in this country who tolerates or teaches any such stuff ought to be fished out and fired, and every disciple of Nazism, Fascism and Communism in this country should be hunted down and shipped back to Germany, Italy and Russia where they belong and where they should be welcome. Down with them here. They have no place in this country. We don't want any Nazi, Fascist or Communist government in America and we won't have it. We have in this country a large number of people who are of German and Italian descent, and who have learned to be good Americans, and who know the difference between a democracy and a totalitarian government, a nation under the heel of one man, and they are good Americans. But we have a large number of persons who are new comers and others who don't want to work, and millions of actual would-be criminals, and they furnish a good seed bed for these foreign "isms." What is happening politicians and charity. When men in Europe should be a lesson to us over here—that this country must continue to be a government of, by and for the people, and not a government of one man. It makes no difference how brilliant the man or good his motives, one man can't do it, and when given too much power, he loses his head and wants more and more, and demands more and more until something cracks. Let's keep America a democratic nation and operate it as a real republic. No outside nation can take this right or heritage from us. It can only come from within, and from those who bore from within. Only the people here can overthrow what we have had in government for 150 years. But true Americanism and true democracy can only be maintained by vigilance. This country has hundreds of thousands and perhaps millions of people in it who would welcome a one man government. But it is our business to see that they don't have it. We have the best governmental system on earth, and that under the best constitution; and our constitution properly distributes the powers of government, and we must keep it so. Change the constitution when it needs it, but live under a constitution, and keep down the tyrants; for when you have only personal government, you live at the whims and orders of men and not under the guidance of laws and principles.

Here at this great school building, we should today rededicate our lives to the maintenance of the principles of democracy as visualized by those who gave us our constitution, and as charted by the very instrument itself.

Totalitarian or one man government has no place in an educated, civilized world. It places at the disposal of one man all the discoveries and inventions of the ages which have been made for the benefit of man, to be used by him to bring about the destruction of man and nations and even civilization itself.

Our flag which we salute and often don't stop to think what it stands for, is a vivid emblem and picture of one great nation of 48 states, each supreme within its own sphere in matters of local concern. Our flag says, "No Hitler—No Mussolini—No Stalin." It says "No Hoover—No Roosevelt—No Coolidge and nobody else shall singlehanded run our government or be a dictator in it." It says that in all 48 states, we have state governments, with state constitutions, governors, legislatures and courts, and that in Washington, we have a president, congress and supreme court, each limited by the constitution in his own work and powers in the government. With this right maintained, we need fear no dictator, no Nazism, no Fascism and no Communism; and we need fear no one man rule so long as we hang on in letter and spirit to our system of constitutional government. Our Constitution is a great educational, moral and spiritual contribution to the civilization of the world. It was wrought out of the blood of sacrifice and self denial. We must keep faith with the men who gave it to us. We can not turn back now. We can not stand still. We must lead the way for a war torn world. We must hold high the torch of freedom that all men may see and read. We must go forward!—Speech delivered by S. Monroe Nickell, at Dedication of West Liberty High School Grounds, Sept. 4, 1939.

COLUMBINE

MORAL RE-ARMAMENT

Picture a man—any man, whether he be a millionaire, a laborer, a farmer, an editor, or what not—picture this man's daily schedule. Every morning he starts his day with a few minutes of quiet—with God. He resolves that in every instance in which his fellowman is concerned he's going to do the unselfish thing. He is going to be not only honest with his fellow-worker but honest with himself. Also, he will be pure both in action and thought, and will be neighborly and loving in every instance. Doubtless this man will not attain perfection in his standards of honesty, unselfishness, purity and love—but through trying, and in some instances having failed, his resistance will have been built up to the point where, eventually, the wrong thing will almost never enter his mind and the right thing will become second nature.

My picture of this man was very hazy and indefinite until recently. On the evening of July 19, 1939, in Los Angeles, there was held in the Hollywood Bowl a "Call to Nations." The center of attraction, curiously enough was three letters—M. R. A. Interpreted they mean Moral Re-Armament. At first thought it seemed odd that such a project would turn 10,000 people away unaccommodated when the Bowl seats 25,000. This M. R. A. business was being put on by a tremendous group of people that have quiet times with God everyday.

The big bowl meeting was only the beginning. This group was going from Los Angeles to the Monterey peninsula to conduct a training center for "A New World Order"—training themselves to make the world "God-conscious." The purpose was to teach people to surrender their lives in a partnership with God, instead of "whole-hogging it," grabbing their lives under their own management and plunging, as it were, headlong into chaos.

I was in that international group of 1,500 which went to be "trained." I marveled at the international aspect of this affair—China, Japan, Burma, India, Australia, Canada, South Africa, Egypt, England, Scotland, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark, Holland, France, Switzerland, Jamaica. Canada was well represented with four hundred. Not only were these people interested in personal peace, peace at home, peace in industry, but also in national and world peace.

My own self-centered complacency melted away when I heard of the sacrifices that had been made to travel that great distance. Working-men doing without lunch to save money and send somebody to the World Assembly. An old couple sent their Silver Wedding Anniversary presents to be converted into money to send someone over. My own roommate out there had sold his automobile to get to Los Angeles and Monterey. These people didn't make such deep sacrifices for any "two-for-a-nickel" cause. They know that Moral Re-Armament is the answer to war, that it will guarantee "peace at home and abroad," that it means absolute Honesty, Purity, Unselfishness, and Love, not only for your nextdoor neighbor, but for every nation. World Understanding!

Here was positive news. This was something, as one of the killed Scots said: "Even Scotchmen can give away." Newsreels from Pathe, Paramount, and News of the Day were released after the Bowl meeting. In all the Western newspapers this was front page news. Wouldn't it be wonderful if your neighbor, Morally Re-Armed, was absolutely honest, pure, unselfish, and loving? Let's look at it this way: I am the neighbor to the other fellow. It is up to me to begin.
